1. Purpose

All life right holders occupying a unit in a retirement home have the right to self-determination and governance. Life right holders have a vested interest in the Retirement Home in which they have decided to stay and are they therefore, in terms of the Act, afforded with the control of the administration and management of the Retirement Home in order for their rights to be protected. This right brings with it certain duties and responsibilities that must be fulfilled by the Occupants in order to properly and more fully enjoy the mentioned right. Amongst others, the duty and responsibility to Maintain the village and keep it in a state of good repair forms part of the duties and responsibilities of the Occupants and this notwithstanding the fact that the property continues to be owned by the developer/Owner thereof. If the Occupants should fail to comply with their duty to maintain, the Owner can enforce compliance. In this way the Act provides for the adequate protection of the Owner's property against deterioration.

The purpose of this Code is to explain and clarify the maintenance rights and obligations of the various parties involved with the Retirement Homes of the Owner. This Code is not meant to replace or supersede the provisions of the relevant Act. In the case of a conflict between the provisions of this Code and the Act, the provisions of the Act shall prevail.

3. Parties

The parties involved with the Retirement Home is the Occupants, the Management Association of the Retirement Home and the Owner. Each of these parties has certain duties and responsibilities in terms of the Act, the Regulations and the life right agreements entered into between the Occupants and the Owner. Some of these duties and responsibilities relate to the maintenance, repair and upkeep of the Retirement Home. It is important for each of these parties to understand and appreciate their respective duties and responsibilities, and to fulfil the same without delay, as it will contribute to the sustainability of the Retirement Homes and the peace and happiness of the Occupants. This is because each party has a vested interest in the successful operation of the Retirement Home and its sustainability. Each one is therefore dependent upon the other for the safeguarding of these interests, not only for their own benefit, but also the benefit of the others. Lack of care, indifference or irresponsible behaviour pertaining to these duties and responsibilities shall cause conflict, disputes, animosity and unhappiness between the parties. It is therefore of utmost importance that each party regards its duties and responsibilities with the seriousness that it deserves.

4. Maintenance Responsibility and Duties

4.1 Occupant

Each Occupant is, amongst others, responsible for:

- 4.1.1 the Maintenance, upkeep and repair of the Interior of the Unit that he/she is occupying;
- 4.1.2 keeping the Interior of the Unit free from infestation or reinfestation by rodents and/or insects

- 4.1.3 keeping the Interior of Unit free from any accumulation of rubbish or garbage.
- 4.1.4 maintaining his/her private garden in compliance with SANS 10400-H-Annex D;
- 4.1.5 implementing proper damp control measures;
- 4.1.6 reporting any instance of risk to the property, Unit or buildings to the Owner and Management Association.

In case of neglect by the Occupant of his/her duties and responsibilities he/she will personally be held accountable for the cost of labour and material required to Maintain the Interior of the Unit in state of good repair.

4.2 Management Association

The Regulations clearly sets out the maintenance duties and responsibilities of the Management Association. Regulation 8 states that "it shall be the duty of the management association to" insure the Retirement Home against risk and to Maintain the same and keep it in a state of good and serviceable repair. Regulation 9 determines that the Management Association shall have the power to establish a levy fund to accomplish this responsibility. This means that the Management Association is, amongst others, responsible for:

- 4.2.1 the Maintenance of the Exterior of all the residential Units and the Maintenance of the communal buildings under its responsibility;
- 4.2.2 providing and Maintaining the water reticulation and the supply of water to the communal buildings, communal gardens and the individual Units for private consumption up to and including the water meter of each unit;
- 4.2.3 the electrical reticulation and the supply of electricity to the communal property, communal buildings and individual units for private consumption up to distribution board of each Unit, but excluding the distribution board;
- 4.2.4 the sewerage reticulation and periodic emptying of sewerage tanks;

- 4.2.5 adequately insuring the housing scheme against risk;
- 4.2.6 Maintenance and administration of the common property and the buildings related thereto, including the land, perimeter fences and/or walls, swimming pool and swimming pool area, roads and pathways and the communal gardens, but excluding the Maintenance of private gardens where these have been permitted.

4.3 The Owner

4.3.1 Structural defects

- 4.3.1.1 The Act determines that during the development of a Retirement Home the Owner/Developer is under duty to ensure that the Retirement Home is erected substantially in accordance with the approved building plans and local authority by-laws and have it sufficiently completed for the purpose of utilisation. Consequently, the Owner is under duty to as far as possible deliver a product which is free of Structural defects.
- 4.3.1.2 It is accepted that at times it will be difficult to determine what repairs are deemed to be Structural repairs compared to normal maintenance repairs. It is therefore important to establish the actual cause of the damage and if it becomes necessary the services of civil or structural engineers should be obtained to assist the parties in determining the cause of the damage.
- 4.3.1.3 If it is determined that the cause of the damage is due to a Structural defect the Owner shall be responsible for the repair of all affected elements and it shall bear the costs related thereto.
- 4.3.1.4 However, where it is determined that the Structural defect was caused due to the acts or omissions of either the Occupant or the Management Association, the Occupant and/or the Management Association, as the case may be, shall be responsible for the repair of the damage and the costs related thereto. Some reasons that might cause Structural defects due to the acts or omissions of the Occupant or Management Association may be the planting, or allowing thereof, of trees or shrubs, as described in SANS 10400-H-Annex D, too close to the Unit; the lack of control of termite infestations which may cause damage to the load-bearing components of a unit; allowing water to be trapped or pond near the housing unit load-bearing components; the non repair of leaking roofs and poor damp control in general.

4.3.1.4 Load-bearing components, for the purpose of Structural defects, are, footing and foundation systems; beams; girders; lintels; columns; load-bearing wall and partitions; roof framing systems and floor systems.

4.3.1.5 The following is not considered as load-bearing components, namely, roofing; drywall and plaster; exterior siding (brick, stone or stucco veneer); floor covering material; wall tile and other wall coverings; non-load bearing walls and partitions; concrete floors in attached garages; electrical, plumbing, heating, cooling and ventilation systems; appliances; fixtures and items of equipment; paint; doors and windows; trim; cabinets; hardware and insulation.

4.3.1.6 The repair of a Structural defect is limited to the repair of:

- i. the damage to the actual load-bearing component in order to restore it to its full load-bearing capacity; and
- ii. non-load-bearing components which were damaged, directly or indirectly, by the Structural defect; and
- iii. damage to the Interior of a Unit, be it of a cosmetic nature or otherwise, caused by the Structural defect, in order to restore the condition of the Interior of the Unit to its original condition or state prior to the damage.

4.3.2 Latent defects

4.3.2.1 Because the Act determines that during the development of a Retirement Home the Owner/Developer is under duty to ensure that the Retirement Home is erected substantially in accordance with the approved building plans and local authority by-laws and have it sufficiently completed for the purpose of utilisation. Consequently, the Owner is under duty to, as far as possible, upon the sale of a unit deliver the unit free of Latent defects.

4.3.2.2 If a Latent defect is discovered within a unit it will be the responsibility of the Owner to repair the defect at its own cost.

4.3.2.3 The Owner's duty to repair Latent defects shall cease 12 (TWELVE) months after the date of occupation of the Unit by the Occupant.

4.3.2.4 The repair of a Latent defect is limited to the repair of:

- i. the damage to the actual object in order to restore it to its full effectiveness or utility; and
- ii. other components which were damaged, directly or indirectly, by the Latent defect; and
- iii. damage to the Interior of a Unit, be it of a cosmetic nature or otherwise, caused by the Latent defect, in order to restore the condition of the Interior of the Unit to its original condition or state prior to the damage.

5. Owner/Developer Maintenance Support

The Owner is willing to assist with some of the Maintenance duties and responsibilities of the Management Association. The assistance shall be subject to the terms and conditions outlined below and shall at all times be considered upon receipt of a written request by the Management Association or its designee. The support of the Owner/Developer shall at all times be subject to the availability of the means and the time to do so. The Owner/Developer is:-

5.1 willing to, at its own costs:

- 5.1.1 maintain retainer walls, but excluding weed control;
 - 5.1.2 provide and Maintain handrails;
 - 5.1.3 inspect perimeter fence and/or wall;
 - 5.1.4 once a year see to cleaning of the cutters and outside waste pipes of all Units and buildings;
 - 5.1.5 paint the exterior of all Units and buildings once every 10 years;
 - 5.1.6 repair small damage to paved or tarmac roads (less than R1000.00 labour & material);
